

Assessment Day

When: February 18, 2022

Integrating Assessment and Improvement for Administrative Units 10:30 a.m. – Noon

Description: Across the country, many higher educators are taking stock of assessment practices. A major finding is that most units -- academic and administrative -- have struggled to tie assessment activities with improvement efforts. In this session, attendees will learn how outcomes assessment and strategic activities can be integrated to improve their units.

Six Questions to Guide Your Learning Improvement Process 1:00 p.m. – 230 p.m.

Description: Why is learning improvement so rare, given that “using results for improvement” is a foundational purpose of assessment? This mystery has vexed the assessment community for decades. In this session, the authors contend that learning improvement at scale is possible. By asking six questions, we can illuminate often hidden links among assessment, changes to the learning environment, and leadership that make such improvement possible.
