

TENNESSEE STATE UNIVERSITY

Campus Master Plan

Acknowledgments

This planning effort would not have been possible without the help of Tennessee State University's administration, faculty, staff and students who were and are committed to making this plan a living document, shaping the physical makeup of the campus for many years to come. President Dr. Melvin Johnson was instrumental in providing the leadership necessary to allow the Master Plan Steering Committee to explore concepts that would most benefit the campus and its surrounding community without constraint. Dr Samuel Polk, as Chair of the Master Plan Steering Committee was also a fundamental contributor to the success of this planning effort; not only organizing the TSU campus community but also by providing a clear and accurate history of past decisions and current activities. The Master Plan Steering Committee and other campus committees (listed in Appendix A) played a vital role in informing the Planning Team of the most important campus needs and reviewing possible solutions to those needs in an objective manner. The outside community was also involved with several planning meetings and provided valuable feedback. With the spirited commitment of all of those involved, the master plan will be able to continue serving as mission support of TSU's strategic plan.
