Another summer vacation has come and gone for my family. We went to a beautiful spot, appropri-cally called the Forgotten Isles. The area is located on the Gulf of Mexico in North Florida’s panhandle along the Big Bend. St. George Island, the Big Bend, Apalachicola Bay, and St. George Island State Park offered a great opportunity for exploring our beach and barrier island habitat.

We are beach lovers, so we spent time in Apalachicola, St. George Island, and St. George Island State Park along the Big Bend.

The beach was a job we needed, visiting two very long bridges. From Apalachicola by crossing Barnier Island accessible by the historic ferryboat or byPadre Island National Seashore, we had to venture to St. George Island, a 23-mile barrier island accessible from Apalachicola by crossing two very long bridges.

We visited the town of Apalachicola, a charming port town that was established in 1823. The town was how they preserved the original buildings and sites listed on the National Register District.

The port town was established in 1823. Many of the buildings filled with restaurant and unique shops.

Another employee,
An entomologist, a person who specializes in the study of insects, offered a session on bugs — those that are beneficial and those that are not.

What I liked most about the Apalachicola reminded me
of the Big Bend Scenic Byway.

...and more than 900
houses out of them." said
TSU's Research Center,
staff reporter for the South-
nern Standard,
McBride.

Another employee,
An entomologist, a per-
son who specializes in
the study of insects, offered
a session on bugs — those
that are beneficial and
those that are not.

What I liked most about the
Apalachicola reminded me
of the Big Bend Scenic Byway.

...and more than 900
houses out of them." said
TSU's Research Center,
staff reporter for the South-
nern Standard,
McBride.

Another employee,
An entomologist, a per-
son who specializes in
the study of insects, offered
a session on bugs — those
that are beneficial and
those that are not.

What I liked most about the
Apalachicola reminded me
of the Big Bend Scenic Byway.

...and more than 900
houses out of them." said
TSU's Research Center,
staff reporter for the South-
nern Standard,
McBride.

Another employee,
An entomologist, a per-
son who specializes in
the study of insects, offered
a session on bugs — those
that are beneficial and
those that are not.

What I liked most about the
Apalachicola reminded me
of the Big Bend Scenic Byway.