

World Music Expressions through Song, Rhythm & Rhyme

(One-week commuter program for grades 5-8 with a pedagogical, in-service component for teachers)

June 2-6, 2014

Students sing, play, create and perform with voice and Orff Instruments. Students explore music literacy relationships, Orff Schulwerk techniques and instruments, and then explode with Performance Artistry Skills! Songs, rhythms, and rhyming approaches from throughout the world that are used in our world's music are part of this experience, providing students with avenues and tools for creating their own expressions. Classes meet daily from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a Friday, June 6 performance at 5:30 p.m. Offered through CAMA by TSU's Department of Music. The cost of $150 for the week includes lunch and snacks. (This camp will meet on TSU main campus for registration in the Lobby of the Performing Arts Center.)

In collaboration, a five-day, half-day in-service workshop component is available for practicing teaching professionals at no cost. Space is limited to 12 teachers:

Keys To Teaching Excellence

Through the artistry of a song, music acts as a verb: stimulating relational thinking and simultaneous processing. General music teachers and choral directors are invited to spend 5 mornings in practical applications in music pedagogy. Sessions include observation and a reflection journal. Teachers will:

- observe sessions with students grades 5 - 8 during the World Music Expressions through Song, Rhythm & Rhyme Camp
- engage in pedagogical reflection-discussions during lunch
- journal responses to guided thinking points while building a cadre of teaching strategies for application in today's interactive, inquiry-centered music classroom and choir.

Daily sessions will be led by Margaret Campbelle-Holman. To see her dynamic teaching background check her LinkedIn profile: Margaret Campbelle-Holman
