1. Complete the Program of Study form in consultation with the PhD program advisor.
2. No graduate program at TSU may be completed with less than a 3.0 cumulative graduate GPA. There are limits to how many times a course may be retaken for the purposes of grade improvement. Additional minimum core course grade requirements, benchmark exam requirements, and prospectus and dissertation requirements apply in the PhD program in public policy and administration. Review the limits and all requirements in the Graduate Catalog online, in both the front matter applying to all graduate students and the program-specific section pertaining to this degree. Taking courses not in your program curriculum can negatively impact your Federal financial aid.
3. Review the PhD student handbook online.

Advisor notes:

* Regular dissertation credits may be divided over multiple semesters, based on student progress in consultation with the program advisor. Once the cumulative 12-regular credit dissertation requirement is satisfied, if the student is not yet finished, lower-cost "continuation" section credits should be taken to stay in the system and maintain library privileges. Seek advising to ensure you are in the correct dissertation credit section for your status because both types of dissertation credit have the same course number (PADM 8100), but different section numbers.
