

Charles H. Galbreath, Jr, native of Fulton, Missouri, is a 2004 graduate of Tennessee State University, earning a degree in Business Administration, Marketing. He also holds a masters degree in Organizational Leadership from Mercy College in Dobbs Ferry, New York. Charles is a premier leader in the tumultuous, yet evolving field of juvenile justice. As a senior consultant for an internationally renowned consulting organization, Charles reforms juvenile justice systems.

In Charles' current New York City contract, coaching, training, mentoring, and monitoring services are provided to employees ranging from direct care staff to commissioners within the New York State Office of Children and Family Services and New York City Administration of Child Services. Supported by his leadership, the historically punitive correctional systems have transitioned to a group therapeutic approach adapted from the award-winning Missouri Approach.

Charles made a commitment to the field of juvenile justice, starting as a youth specialist for the Missouri Department of Social Services, Division of Youth Services. Galbreath quickly excelled, becoming a statewide trainer for the Missouri Department of Social Services. As a trusted agency leader, he led the department's Employee Satisfaction and Engagement Committee and served on the Missouri State Employee Recognition Committee. While serving the state of Missouri, he was a member of the Missouri Juvenile Justice Association and a leadership coach/facilitator to the Missouri Child Support Enforcement Association. Consequently, his commitment and dynamic presentation skills made him an undeniable public figure to represent Missouri's juvenile justice approach on an international platform.

With the same zeal, Charles is a visionary leader within the Tennessee State University Alumni experience. Currently serving as the 26th President of the Tennessee State University National Alumni Association(TSUNAA), Charles previously served in the administrations of two Tennessee State University National Alumni Association national presidents. His first appointed position was the Young Alumni Coordinator and his second appointment was the Strategic Planning & Organizational Effectiveness chairman. As well, Charles effectively served three years as the president of the TSUNAA Greater St. Louis Chapter. In addition to being a Life member of TSUNAA, he is a member of Tennessee State University's President's Society and Legacy Society.

Active in the New York City community, Charles supports the Brooklyn Museum and the New York City Public Library as a member. He is also an advocate for the HBCU Hub and an active member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Incorporated.
