

TSU INTERPROFESSIONAL GRANT SCHOLARS Program

THINK. WORK. SERVE.

Program Description

This new program provides enhanced education and training for health professions and special education students interested in pursuing careers serving school-aged children with disabilities. The program focuses on children from various backgrounds and is designed to increase the number of special education teachers, speech-language pathologists, and physical therapists working collaboratively.

The Program Offers

- A specialized, interprofessional curriculum designed to prepare Grant Scholars to deliver responsive, effective, and evidence based instruction, interventions, and services to children with disabilities.
- Financial support for students selected as Grant Scholars, as long as funding is available.

Funding for Grant Scholars

TSU Interprofessional Grant (TIG) Scholars will receive training stipends of 29,000* over the duration of their programs of study, as long as funding is available. Funds may be used for tuition, fees, books, materials, supplies, & miscellaneous personal expenses that support their education.
