

Position: Graduate Research Assistant

The duties assigned for Graduate Research Assistantships should be relevant and add value to the student's major field of study, area of interest, or expertise. The research is usually a component of the faculty advisor's research. GRAs are generally expected to carry out a specific research project that often forms the basis for a thesis or dissertation.